We are selling this windmill because we are certain it is the greatest value on the market. It is practically two windmills built into one. It outclasses all others in strength, durability, pumping efficiency and smooth, noiseless running. Come in and let us point out some of the exclusive features of this windmill. It will be well worth while to see to what an unusual state of efficiency the windmill has been developed in the Model 12 Star. Star Windmills have built a world-wide reputation, and the Model 12 is the greatest of all Stars. Come in and see it.

OBITUARY.

Ella Waldfole, daughter of Casper and Barbara Waldfole, was born in Franklin township, Fulton County, Ohio, November 16, 1885, and departed this life May 10th, 1916, after an illness of a short time at the age of thirty years, five months and sixteen days. She leaves to mourn their loss a father, mother, five brothers, three sisters and a host of relatives and friends. Two brothers preceded her in death. At an early age she confessed her faith in Christ and was baptized and united with the Ambrose church but a few years later she removed her membership and united with the United Brethren church and ever remained a faithful member until death. Funeral from the Fountain U. B. church conducted by the writer in English and Father Graf of the German Baptist in German. Burial in the cemetery west of Tedrow, Ohio.

The Low Brow and the High.

A citizen whose education had been neglected remonstrated with the next-door neighbor for running his graphophone (or phonograph, according to which way it is revolved) late at night. It disturbed him, he declared. He had to get up some time in the morning, and he'd be daddogged if— "But, my dear sir," returned the neighbor, who was a very intellectual person, "I play nothing but the classics. They may keep you awake, but they cannot disturb you. Instead, they are certain to elevate your taste and give you a keener appreciation of the higher things of life. And—why, what is the matter?" The first man had been seized by some kind of a spell which caused him to remark: "Gug-gug!" in a choking voice.

Daily Thought.

A great part of the happiness of life consists not in fighting battles, but in avoiding them. A masterly retreat is in itself a victory.—Longfellow.

The Juvenile Band of Delta won many words of praise for the fine music they furnished and their presence did much to help make the day the glorious success which it was. The open air and exercises gave all those present a good healthy appetite so that the picnic dinner was thoroughly enjoyed.

Governor Willis' address was intensely practical free from politics and so plain that the children could understand it and treasure many of the things he said in memory. His theme was the training of hand and heart as well as the mind in the public schools. He pointed out a weakness in our school system as indicated by the fact that so many girls passed through the schools and graduated without any knowledge of house work and were incapable of home making and home keeping.

Boys who graduate from the schools untrained to work of any sort. The Governor said that he hoped that the day would soon come when Domestic Science and Manual Training would be a part of the regular curriculum in every school in the state and when boys and girls would be taught in the schools to look upon the farm as something to be desired and as altogether honorable and dignified. He also laid emphasis upon training in thrift; the boys and girls in the schools should be encouraged to save, lay by for future needs, instead of spending all that they get or earn. Eloquently the Governor urged moral training, the building of character, in the schools.

SCHOOL CHILDREN AND GOVERNOR

After the track meet everybody retired to satisfy the physical body after this duty had been performed. "The Beauty of a Life of Service" was the theme of the oratorical contest. Bryan, Montpelier and Wauseon were well represented with large crowds of enthusiastic rooters and Wauseon's "Red and White" seemed to ring out louder than any of the others.

After thirty minutes of singing and cheering the curtain rose and Mr. Dustin of the Montpelier High school welcomed the schools and introduced the speakers and their topics in the following order:

- "The Beauty of a Life of Service" Vesta Frey, Archbold
- "The Golden Treasury of Man" Ralph Goll, Swanton
- "The First Man in the Land" Maurice Tressler, Montpelier
- "Pucks and Touchstones" Christine Outcalt, Wauseon
- "A True American" Lena Sieman, Delta
- "Youth's Vision of Life" Algona Garen, Stryker
- "Preparedness" Perin Long, Bryan

After the orations, Professor Lou-isa Eich, of the University of Michigan presented the medals to the winners in the track meet and also the loving cup to Bryan by virtue of the Bryan team scoring the highest number of points.

During the presentation of the medals every one seemed on great nerve and tension, anxious to hear the decision in regard to the oratorical contest. Every Wauseonian felt sure that the first place would be awarded to Miss Outcalt and yet Mr. Long of Bryan had a timely speech and his oration was delivered in a splendid manner. At length Professor Eich arose and announced that the second place was awarded Mr. Long of Bryan and the first place to Miss Christine Outcalt of Wauseon. Both of these orations were written in a perfect manner but the splendid delivery and the pleasing personality of Wauseon's representative were far superior to any of the others. The first place was awarded to Maurice Tressler of Montpelier and fourth to Vesta Frey of Archbold.

The day ended with Wauseon second in track events and first in Oratory. Everyone enjoyed themselves and never once showed lack of loyalty to their school.

Elated over the splendid record made by Paul Spade in the discus throw, the Wauseon High School Athletic Association have decided to send him to the State High School Athletic Contests at Columbus, May 27th. Mr. Spade's throw of 104 feet and 8 inches is less than two feet short of the State's record of 106 feet 2 inches.

THE EMPIRE FALLS

were to be set again on the throne by the Bourbons and peace was to reign once more in Europe.

Napoleon did not stay long in Elba. He had resolved to go back to France and occupy the throne as he thought it was the mightiest throne in the universe. Taking with him a number of his troops, he sailed for France where the Bourbon troops were over to his side, and the Bourbon king fled the country. Prussia and England sent their armies into Belgium to overthrow Napoleon for the second time.

At Waterloo, when Napoleon was beating back the Duke of Wellington and his English, Dutch and Belgian troops, Prince Blucher, a field marshal of the King of Prussia, with a huge army of Prussians appeared on the scene and dealt Napoleon the fatal blow which crushed forever all the hopeful dreams of the French Empire.

Afraid to trust his won people he threw himself into the hands of England and she deported him to the bleak island of St. Helena where he was to live until he died. The Bourbons were restored to the throne, and they began their reign by executing all who had joined the cause of the great Napoleon including Marshal Ney, the Prince of Moskova.

Marie Louise married twice after Napoleon had died from cancer of the stomach and she now lies buried in an old church in Vienna, with Napoleon's name alone recorded on her coffin. The Duke of Reichstadt died in his twenty-first year from tuberculosis, and he lies beside his mother in Vienna, booted and spurred and in his Austrian uniform, while the Hapsburgs proudly boast and are not ashamed to confess, by the inscription on his coffin that the blood of the great Rudolph and the Corsican artilleryman were mingled in his veins.

Napoleon's body was removed from St. Helena, and brought to Paris, where it now lies in an elegant sarcophagus—fit almost for a deity dead. This great man whose one desire was an heir to perpetuate his empire was denied this greatest of hopes by the untimely death of the King of Rome.
